

I don't appreciate what you're attempting to do to the internet, FCC. We've lived in a world where the internet has been trying to be tampered with, censored, dumbed down, which placates the people of America.

We're not made of money, there should be NO reason whatsoever to having to be forced to pay extra, on top of our already expensive internet bills, netflix account, Xbox Live, etc. More and more the internet is trying to be taken over, that's one step closer to the phrase, "Big Brother is watching you."

And I can't speak for the overall American people, because we live in a country where we're allowed* to express our opinions and beliefs and we have the freedom to do so, but I can say that this won't just be affecting the people, but rather the companies you have tried aligning with the keep watch on the American people will be greatly affected too. This will cause said companies struggle to stay in business if we have to pay more just to browse the web, which has been free since the internet was invented in the first place!

I don't see a scenario where this makes logical sense, unless we were made out of money. Even then that would still be nonsense, but we're not and this is the real world. People who make minimum wage, or even slightly above that, myself included, live paycheck to paycheck, paying taxes to the government and services I can't even use, but pay for other people. I file my taxes every year, and try to stay in the green with Uncle Sam, but notions like this is absolutely uncalled for. It's merely greed on the Governments part. It's simply greed.

Don't try to make the American people suffer more, we're already dealing with enough of what's been trying to happen to the internet. Most of all Americans use the internet and I know I'm not the only person who believes any of this. Do the right thing, and not the greedy thing. Leave Net Neutrality the way it is, don't think you have to change it to add more money to Washington. With all other issues going on in the world: I.E. World hunger, war, famine, natural disasters, etc. this shouldn't even be THOUGHT of! We need to stop wasting our time and tax payer's money and focus on what's REALLY important!

Just stop FCC. Stop being silly and focus on being a part of a functional government.
