

7521147696.txt

The paid prioritization of the internet will be the death of the internet as we know it. Not only that, but it seems that this proposal was drafted by the ISP's themselves. All it seems to do is provide the ISP's with a greater means to fill their wallets. Consumers should have even access to all parts of the internet without having to worry if they paid extra for faster service. Not only that, but it will destroy small businesses and startups that cannot afford the faster service fees that the providers will be able to charge. The concept of an open internet is that all content is provided equally and evenly regardless of what it is. The current proposal defies this very important concept. It is the idea of an open internet that allowed former "startups" like Ebay and Amazon to turn into the massive companies that they are today.