

Public Comment on Rule 14-28

Any government would be a fool to allow almost all political, economic, social, and media content to be so controlled by a few moneyed interests & then to risk losing it all to the only place left where dissenters can not only have their voices heard, but most importantly, can easily connect to others with similar views.

The shared nightmare of these gazillionaires and their puppets in government is a Gandhi or MLK or Nelson Mandela with the term viral anywhere near it. I have to assume there's a reason the NSA feels the need to keep hiring more outside contractors and data storage facilities, and luddites like Limbaugh, whose unlikability is overmatched only by his depth of ignorance in all things internet - only cements the solidarity and adds to the voices of a citizenry just waking up to the power that we have when we band together.

Tyranny always fears the power of the great unwashed masses. Democracy dies when our many voices are silenced or ignored in favor of the very few who consolidate power with money, influence, and lies.

If nothing else, have some shame.

Sincerely,

Serene Tami Sargent
