

My vote is to classify the internet as a public utility and in any other decisions or regulation maintain net (packet transmission and delivery) neutrality without creating tiers of service that allow costs to trickle down to the consumers.