Dear FCC.

Maintain true net neutrality by reclassifying ISPs as telecommunications companies so that they must treat all internet traffic the same.

The claims that a new paid fast lane will not take anything away from existing traffic are a cynical lie. Will companies continue to invest in their slower tier when investment in the fast tier will have a higher return - no. The answer is obvious to anyone who understands market forces.

Stop serving your corporate masters and serve the people for once.

Our country has become a government of the people by the corporations and for the corporations - the FCC can take a step back from that or help the entrenched interests entrench a little more - what's in going to be? Do you support the spirit of our constitution or do you just want the rich to get richer?

And special note for Tom Wheeler:

Tom, you sign your messages with "I'm a strong supporter of the Open Internet, and I will fight to keep the internet open. Thanks again for sharing your views with me." It just proves how cynical you are.
