

7521153401.txt

We know how corporations work. The reality is,, companies like Time Warner and Comcast aren't creating a "fast lane" they are creating a restriction. By removing Net Neutrality, they can and will slow down any site that they compete with, and then charge both consumers and websites high premiums for fair access. The internet should be fair and free, a bit from one website should be just as equal as a bit from another.