

7521153640.txt

I have reviewed the FCC's proposed new "net neutrality" rules and I would like to go on record as being OPPOSED to the new rules. It is obvious in the phrasing that companies will be able to abuse the rules to provide preferential treatment to some network traffic/customers over others. I request that the current methods of true network neutrality be maintained.

P.S. If these rules pass, the system will definitely be abused, likely resulting in the migration of customers and traffic to areas outside the US. This will result in grave economic damage to the US economy.