It is frustrating to see my countries future of technological advancement get skirted by corporate interests and campaign contributions.

It is all too often that there is very little that the average citizen can do to influence the government in the name of democracy. All I can do is write a note, hope it gets read, and that it gets taken seriously.

So, here is my note. I hope one day USA will be greater than every other country, like it started out. Moving forward isn't always easy, it requires personal sacrifice. It seems like its all to easy to be selfi sh these days.
