

To those at the FCC, I like many others are deeply concerned about protecting the free and open internet for all people of the United States and do not want to see imposed restrictions or intentional slowdowns. The irradiation of internet neutrality will kill the ability for any future company to challenge someone with a better idea, better technology, or better service because as startups won't have cash to buy the same access. This is an attack on our freedom of speech. It is a terrible mistake for the freedom of the internet and our nation. Please protect open Internet standards and net neutrality.

I appreciate the opportunity to be heard. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Luke Blecha
