It has come to my attention that the main cable providers in our country such as comcast and AT&T have been intentionally slowing down the wireless internet speed of it's customers despite what they paid for so that they may charge higher rates for the speed that we are already paying for. Also, when these companies come to your house to "fix" your wireless problems, they intentionally cause other problems then charge you to fix those problems with shouldn't exist in the first place. This is unfair and must stop
