

7521161809.txt

Let's frame this discussion in a more concise manner:

FCC: Should we allow a borderline fully monopolized industry monopolize the medium through which the industry delivers it's monopolized content to already discontent consumers?

Alright, so maybe it's still not the most concise question, but how in the hell is this even a 'discussion?' Should we next allow Walmart, Target, Kroger, Sears/Kmart, and every other major retail corporation regulate the roadways? "Well you see, over half of the people on the road are traveling to OUR stores, so we don't see what the big deal is when we want to limit traffic to increase consumers' ability to buy our products."

Does that seem ludicrous? If it does, then stop this nonsense 'discussion' right now and return to SERVING THE PUBLIC INTEREST.

Sincerely,

A Washington State CITIZEN

PS: You'll notice I call myself a CITIZEN, not a CONSUMER because that is who I AM. A consumer is a commodity for industry, a citizen is a rights-endowed, living, breathing human being with friends and family, not words-on-paper with lobbyists and bank accounts. Let's remember which one of these a government works for and is composed of.