

7521163324.txt

The proposed change to Net Neutrality is a horrible idea. One that is clearly motivated by lobbying from internet service providers. When a rule change is as one sided as this rule change appears to be, the FCC's integrity will come into question. The internet should be free to use, just as roads are free to use. By allowing this rule to change the internet will begin to look a lot more like the cable and ISP landscape. One where only the rich will succeed and competition will be nonexistent.