1. Tom Wheeler should immediately step down as head of the FCC on the grounds that he has a glaring conflict of interest.
2. The FCC's core reason for existence should be to protect the people of the United States from anybody who would harm the level playing field of the internet to give greater communication advantage to those who would pay for an advantage.
3. The FCC and the FTC should immediately launch an investigation into the behavior of cable companies who throttle competition between themselves and any smaller companies.
- 4 FCC and FTC should take steps to end the monopolies of the largest cable companies.
