

7521173720.txt

I support net neutrality. Giving large companies the ability to shit all over smaller companies by throttling the bandwidth of those unable to pay exorbitant fees is just wrong. The argument that they will not throttle bandwidth, only increase it further for those who pay, is just horse shit. Look at what happened when Netflix tried to stand up to Comcast. Shockingly, their data speeds plummeted until they were willing to play ball with Comcast. Sound a lot like extortion to me.