

7521176449.txt

The idea that some users could have content sooner or in better quality and other users could not is horrible. If you were discussing any other commodity or resource -- food, electricity, vaccines, drinking water, justice -- you would be accused of racism/classism, maybe even accused of an attempt to eradicate a certain segment of the population. This proposal is abhorrent. The internet serves all people, equally and blindly without regard to who pays more for premium content.