

7521179461.txt

It is totally unfathomable that you are even considering ending the practice known as Net Neutrality. The Internet is one of the greatest developments in history and has brought a degree of equality to at least some aspects of society in an age when classes and income levels are becoming characterized by greater and greater disparity. Do you really want to go down in history as being the agency and the government that ended all that. It's absolutely ludicrous.