I believe this is one of the biggest loads of Horse Shit that I have ever seen. You are handing over self-regulation of the internet towards companies that are so inept and corrupt that they rank last in all customer satisfaction surveys.

The fact that the FCC expects people to believe that this will result in anything good is completely and utterly insulting. The only explanation why the government would hand over control of the distribution of content over to the INTERNET providers is bribes.

I am anxiously waiting to hear about the mountain of bribes, drugs, and hookers that were promised to the heads of the FCC in order to get this bill pass. I cannot view how anyone but the most gullible, idiotic, and weak-minded person could agree to do this otherwise.

By signing this bill into law, you are collectively asking all of America to blindly accept whatever good news these companies provide us. Sure, it's bad enough as it is with Google metering out what most people find, but this will only make matters far far worse.

I believe this is nothing more than another fine product of this Obama administration ... which has done nothing but completely fuck up everything it has ever touched. And that is exactly what this is - a complete and total fuck up.
