

First, I would like to say, the ONLY good that will come out of this will be the unification of the general public of the United States of America to defeat such an egregious monopoly and finally force changes in a seriously corrupt government. If you want to force the American people past their tipping point, please pass this legislation and you shall see how active the people can be.

The internet has skyrocketed humanities' ability to obtain and comprehend information as well as create new methods for organizing and showing different data and media types. Those who seek to restrain such a free system are no better than the corrupt politicians who allow themselves to be bought out and who turn an organization such as the FCC into a joke by hiring assholes such as Tom Wheeler.

If you want protests, riots and forced change from the public, pass this law and you will see how quickly the American people can go from tame to ferocious.
