In regards to your proposal to allow 2 tiers of internet speeds based on how much a company can pay, I am strongly opposed. The internet should not be for sale, as it is the property of mankind. Funneling people into one website as opposed to another based on monetary reach is not only shameful, it is a slap in the face of the American citizens who are paying your salary. It is the job of the FCC to stand up to big business and protect the citizens from the tyrannical seizure of OUR internet, not to bend over to their lobbyists and give them what they ask for. Show some backbone, and for God's sake show the American people and people of the world that for once the federal government can stand square shouldered in the face of corruption and do what is right.

If you are going to have a "hyper speed lane", it better be for everyone!

Shame on those responsible for this despicable proposal. Please resign from your posts, and allow someone with the best interest of the American people the opportunity to serve our country.
