Is the physical world and nearly all of it's wealth and power not enough for you? Why do you want to rape the one medium left on this planet that levels the playing field for some honest people? We all know you're not an actual government by it's definition. We all know the world, especially the USA is run by MNCs with the government on-goings as just a farce made to dupe the public into thinking their votes actually matter. We get it. The US government IS the greatest corporation on earth. You won. It's over. You have no more challengers. You ate them all. Please leave the internet alone. I mean it's not like its publicly owned or anything, nor will it be (don't shit yourselves over the prospect, it's not happening). So please, keep it in your pants. Don't rape net neutrality.
