A fair and open Internet is the key to the free expression of ideas, business competition, and a level playing field for all individuals. The proposal funded by cable company lobbyists and pushed by the FCC is the worst possible thing that could happen in regards to how data is treated on the Internet. Comcast and Verizon are pushing to monopolize the Internet and taking the actions seen by organized crime and other cartels in the past (and present) to the detriment to all users of the Internet. This proposal can not be passed into law. We must fight for and uphold Net Neutrality. The Internet should not be sold to the highest bidder.
