

7521253723.txt

I do not believe we should allow major cable providers carte blanche over designating importance of internet content. Value of information is in the eye of the beholder, not the shareholder. Censoring the internet for monetary gains, or suppressing or advancing causes more or less profitable to corporate agendas should be illegal. Monopolies are illegal, and when a small group of providers come into agreement they essentially become one entity and as such, a monopoly. Please keep the internet a neutral playing field; it is our last one.