I am not a US citizen but as the US administered internet is something that benefits (infiltrates) the whole world, which in turn benefits the US, I feel I should be able to comment considered.

I do not support a two-tier internet, especially when it appears to be largely a vehicle for the monopoly providers to increase their revenues.

I suggest that regulation should be provided by an independent body comprised of publicly elected end users, academics, and corporations, from the US and the rest of the world.
