

7521266492.txt

Net neutrality is critical to the function of the internet and our economy. Allowing ISPs the freedom to extract more hard earned money from customers will only have negative results for our nation.

The FCC and the DOJ should begin to investigate if any violations of the Sherman Anti trust Act or racketeering have occurred on the part of ISPs during the last few years. I find it hard to believe that the cable companies actions have been ethical on this matter.