

7521267466.txt

Net Neutrality must be preserved in its current form. Companies must not be allowed to establish tiered bandwidth levels, as this would encourage a monopoly in the internet provider industry worse than what already exists. In order to have a society which is competitive with societies around the world, we need to have THE BEST internet, created through true competition with a level playing field for both service providers and those providing content.