What can I say that hasn't been said at least 40,000 other times? I guess I can just copy and paste any of the feelings of the many Americans in our country and it would probably accurately get my point across. So here you have it.

"We must stop corporations from making the rules, and cutting out smaller and/or start up companies from having a chance to innovate. Any changes to the current fair system would give control to business without oversight and would be inherently dangerous to freedom. It's time for this to stop. This is the perfect issue to say to big business "you do not own everything, play fair" anything else will result in less innovation and higher prices for consumers with no benefit to the consumer.

The FCC was established to be an oversight to all communication systems, among other things. Do your job and keep the playing field level. Do not allow this to happen. If you've forgotten read your own "what we do" page (<http://www.fcc.gov/what-we-do>)"
