

7521285533.txt

In this "Land of the Free and Home of the Brave", it is our duty and responsibility to ensure that the internet remains free, open, neutral and kept in line with both the values of the Constitution of the United States and those of freedom, liberty and justice for ALL.

The internet, much like the above values, is not something to be regulated or controlled by big corporations with active financial and vested business interests in such control, nor by a Congress lobbied and bought by said corporations.

As an open and public platform and resource for information, knowledge, ideas, media, communication, arts, social services, trade and much much more, the internet should NEVER be allowed to be controlled, nor monopolized by ANY corporate group or financially invested lobby. It would be akin to allowing Amazon or Barnes & Noble to control access to public libraries, or McDonalds & Taco Bell to control the availability or issuing of food stamps, or even big pharmaceutical companies dictating which treatments are to be allowed at public hospitals.

At best, such practices are a gross conflict of interest, monopolistic and anti-competitive. While at worst they can be construed as treasonous toward these United States and her people, and the freedoms and values that so many American people have fought and died to protect and preserve.

The internet MUST and WILL remain neutral for the sake of "We the people..." and not partitioned off or limited by "We the big corporations with fat wallets..."