The fact that this change is actually being considered is absolutely absurd. There is no way that the FCC could maintain even a particle of dignity or legitimacy if this idiocy is allowed to proceed. While corporations are used to getting whatever they want and forcing their customers to simply bend over and take it, they are naive if they think we will gradually accept this. This conflict could make or break the country's trust and confidence in the FCC. I sincerely hope the FCC steps up and does their actual job for once.
