

7521292998.txt

I believe that the openness and fair and equal access on the internet is as important as equal treatment under the law and comparable to the basic American value/right to equal freedom in the pursuit of happiness. The internet is a tool for people to discover, create, and achieve their dreams. It must be kept open, neutral, and un-manipulated (especially by Time Warner and Comcast). I believe protecting and promoting the open internet is one of the most important issues of this decade. The internet has revolutionized the way we live our lives, gather and share information, and connect with others. No corporation of any kind (especially not Time Warner and Comcast) should be allowed to play favorites and grant higher speeds and improved capabilities to the highest bidder. Doing so automatically hinders the accessibility of other important small profit or nonprofit type websites and social movements (or any entity not driven by profit). If Comcast and TW are allowed to manipulate the access to the internet, that basically means they are being allowed to grant more freedom to some people/entities while taking freedom away from others. Net neutrality is a must!!! Don't let corporations decide who gets a voice on the internet and a fast lane to freedom. Please!!