

7521300796.txt

The Internet is a place where humans can connect like never before. Here, culture thrives in the worst and best ways. The preservation of a free and open place, where information can be shared and people can talk freely, is essential in a free society. Let the speech of individuals trump the censorship of corporations.