Ending Net Neutrality is an awful idea. It's pathetic how much the government is willing to bend over for the sake of their relationships with cable companies. Protect the freedom of your citizens to have equal access to obtaining and distributing information instead of the next campaign budget. And if you're so worried about that, maybe you should ban campaign donations altogether and give each candidate a set budget of federal funds to campaign with. It would be well worth the tax payers' money to get all of this corporate corruption out of our government.
