To whoever corresponds:

I have been an internet citizen for the last 25 years.

I have setup and ran ISPs for 15.

Net neutrality is and intrinsic value of internet, and no law or regulation must provide any framework that can be exploited to allow any content provider any benefit over other by means of money.

If you want to do anything good and usefull go and split comcast, verizon and any ISP over 100k subscribers in smaller sets.

NOBODY needs so much power.

You can follow it with NSBC, CNN and those guys.

Learn of those who had the balls to split Bell in the 60s.

If you lack those before refered at least classify internet as COMMON CARRIER, and go home knowing you did the right thing.

Thanks in advance,

Sebastian Muñiz.
