The internet is THE LAST free platform that we as a people have. Come on, FCC. You know the two-tiered system is a terrible idea for the majority, yet you'd rather line your greedy pockets than actually do something that would benefit everyone in the LONG RUN instead of just the few in the short run. This is evident by your tactic of having people upload a document instead of having a comment box to post in. Everyone can see that you're just trying to make it harder for anyone to voice their opinions and then slap a "See? I told you no one cares about this issue! Two-tiered system for all!?" .

Also, everyone knows that your ruling body is just lobbyists for the same corporations that want to gut the open internet. How is that even right? It's not. And you know it. Stop being the villain and actually be a good guy. For once.
