

7521326714.txt

It's very simple. The right to communicate should be inalienable and separate from commercial control. It stifles free thought and creates gatekeepers with their fiduciary responsibility to maximize profit for their shareholders which is a simple conflict of interest. It is the government's sole responsibility to regulate and protect its people's rights as corporations are responsible to act on behalf of their shareholders.