

7521329754.txt

The dominance of a small group of internet providing companies with little to no competition will cause a dangerous reduction in internet accessibility to the people of the United States. The outrageous prices, extremely poor customer service, and aggressive lobbying against an unrestricted internet are indicative of the carelessness they display towards propagating the free flow of information throughout our society.