I simply wish to relate my sincere hope that with the merger of Comcast and TWC, the programming needs of the rural viewers served throughout the country by RFD-TV and Rural-TV will be not only considered, but protected. In my area of Southeastern North Carolina, for example, RFD-TV provides important programming relating to the agricultural, cultural, and rural news needs of a considerable population segment. While I am not personally a customer of Comcast or TWC, I recognize that the financial viability of RFD-TV depends upon the ongoing viewership of those cable customers who are served by these corporations. In essence, my ability to enjoy RFD programming depends upon whether the network is available to cable customers elsewhere.

Therefore, again, please consider and protect the needs of America's rural television programming viewers, who are vitally served by the RFD-TV and Rural-TV networks. Thank you very much for your consideration in this matter.
