

7521335296.txt

The Internet should remain a forum for innovation and free expression. As so many startups and political activists know, open, affordable, fast and universal communications networks are essential to our individual, economic and political futures. I urge the FCC to maintain NET NEUTRALITY.