I am writing to submit my concerns about the ATT & DirectTV merger. My concerns focus on the quality of programs after the merger. Today, DirectTV offers programming such as RFD-TV and other independent channels. The RFD-TV channel gives information that is beneficial to the non-urban community as well as urban areas. RFD-TV presents shows that truly are family-oriented versus what is available on most channels. I want my family to be able to watch wholesome TV where there is NO VIOLENCE, PROFANITY, AND SEXUAL ACTIVITY. RFD-TV is educational because it enables individuals never exposed to non-urban living to learn about farming, food production, another way of living.

Consider all factors when approving this merger. This merger could follow the same route as the financial service industry, utility companies etc. Becoming too big is not always in the best interest of the consumer, but it always benefits the merging entities. Thank you.

Sincerely,
M A Husack
