

We need to keep net neutrality. An open internet is vitally important for commerce, democracy, and human rights.

I understand that Tom Wheeler was a lobbyist for the cable and wireless industry, and it's very clear that he's still working for them. It's not his job to only look out for Comcast and other large corporations, though. It's his job to look out for the people of this country. If he's unable to do so, he should resign.
