These companies are going to destroy the entire industry i've built my life around. Web development. Noone will be able to innovate without paying a corporate "fee" to get the fast lane. It wont be a fast lane and faster lane. It will be a slow lane, and an mostly unhindered lane. because if this goes through they wont even have to live up to their current speeds. There's nothing that says they have to. They'll all be so comfortable there will be no need to compete with eachother. Hell, TWC is already "not doing business" in large cities where their competitors are, in return for the same favor. It's greed. Lining your pockets with gold will cost our country the future of online information.
