

7521347182.txt

Without net neutrality, not only would consumers only be able to access the sites their provider deems worthy (a provider the consumer had NO CHOICE in subscribing to, as there is only one Internet provider in every region), but innovation would be all but impossible. Without net neutrality, companies like YouTube and Netflix, companies that have changed the face of media, would never have succeeded because providers like Comcast and AT