The Internet. One of the last holdouts of free expression, has come under fire from corporate interest. How many of our industries have been bought and sold with campaign contributions and lobbying? The sad fact is, these multinational corporations do not have any loyalty to this country or it's constituents. Their one and only obligation is to their shareholders. Have you ever called tech support? Those jobs are overseas. That is a perfect example of corporate interest over domestic. I'm asking the powers that be to rebuke corporate interest in favor of what's best for the people in this country. I understand that hasn't been a function of this government. It's time to take a stand for ourselves and our children.
