

7521349421.txt

The internet has become a vital part of daily life in America. Changing it would cripple the average American's ability to innovate and create.