

As a concerned citizen, I urge the FCC to drop its proposal to fund the E-Rate program on a per-pupil basis. The per-pupil E-Rate funding jeopardizes Internet connectivity to schools. This new, per-pupil formula is likely to shortchange the very school districts that need assistance the most. Instead, funding should be driven by equity, including poverty and locale, and the funding cap for the already oversubscribed program should be lifted!

Thank you,
Todd Snyder
San Francisco, CA