

7521352357.txt

The broadband internet should definitely be classified as a common carrier. It would keep it fair and equal for all consumers. If not the end consumers (everyday people) will be stuck with whatever costs the corporations want to pass down. The people are what matter, not huge corporations.