Comment in the matter of Proceeding #09-191

Americans are told we are spoiled for choice and rich. Neither is true- we are isolated and only have access to two points of view from a variety of media, often not that many. Equal access to an internet open to anyone who can pay for server space is our only opportunity to experience the nuance and possibilities of the world. I can't afford to pay extra for intelligence the same way I can't afford to move from this dead small town to a vital city. Don't doom us to ignorance- we'll remember who locked us away in a world of video press releases and celebrity cults.
