I am deeply concerned how the upcoming merger between Comcast and Time Warner will affect RFD TV and it's millions of viewers, including my family and me. I currently am a customer of Directv and am also concerned if the deal between AT&T and Directv takes place, how that may also affect Directv carrying RFD TV as they do now. Please consider how these mergers may affect millions of viewers who depend on important information RFD TV provides.....Thank you for your consideration!

Comcast has been removing RFD-TV from many of their cable systems over the last year. Mr. David Cohen, VP at Comcast, explained the dropping of RFD-TV in Colorado and New Mexico in August/2013 in the House Judiciary Hearing on the merger by stating that Comcast is "primarily an urban-cluster cable company". That did not sit well with the rural Congressmen on the panel. Mr. Cohen gave no explanation for adding Al Jazeera America two days after taking RFD-TV down on those same Colorado and New Mexico cable systems, or for carrying BBC World News as an independent channel on all their systems. I also testified at that same hearing, and asked the rhetorical question "Can't there be room for at least one channel that serves the interests of rural America"?
