

7521362082.txt

I believe that the FCC should classify Internet service providers as a "telecommunications" service similarly to how it does with telephone service so that common carrier rules apply.