Money, the root of all evil. Broad statement but the base of it is true, when all is focused upon greed no good can come of it. Allowing the isp's to force web entities to cough up their own money in order for decent access to their site is ludicrous. The sole purpose of this is further remove small business/ people from the equation and only a select few who have the money to be heard. I am for net neutrality and I hope I've made some sense.
