Because without net neutrality, my business will go under, and my dog will starve to death.

So if you do away with net neutrality, you are literally murdering a corgi. Is that what you want on your hands? Corgi murder? Because that is what you're getting. A dead corgi. Because you couldn't just leave things as they were, which were fine, and the rich people were already getting rich as it is.

Stop killing corgis, FCC.
